Heather's weight loss

Journey

Heather humorously shares her story.

"Once upon a time there was a girl who lived with her 2 brothers and 2 sisters, not in a shoe but in a small country town. She loved school and dreamed one day of becoming a teacher. She also loved being active and her days were filled with netball, basketball and tennis.

The girl soon became a teenager and while she still continued to enjoy her sport she became tempted not by a delicious red juicy apple, but rather chocolate bars which she consumed on wet winter afternoons in front of the heater. She would buy the chocolate and large packets of chips from money she had earned from umpiring netball and she told herself she had earned these treats.

Time passed and soon the teenager was lost and replaced by an overweight, overwhelmed bride in a size 20 wedding dress.

.. a fairy tale ending

She was amazed that anyone could love someone so big and really thought Prince Charming had arrived (unfortunately he turned out to be only a frog after all) Soon the young woman found she was with child (for it took a little time for the spell to be broken and the prince to reveal his true identity). Her joy knew no bounds and she began to eat for two and never quite stopped even after she delivered a fine healthy baby boy.

Years passed and she waited for her real knight in shining armour to arrive and save her but alas not even a woodsman came! The big bad wolf of junk food, yo yo dieting and diabetes began to control her life. At the start she did go to balls in fine dresses but soon the dresses became tents and she felt like the ugly duckling that could never become a swan. For many years she spiralled - feel fat, eat, feel worse eat..... lose some weight, eat.....

Then one fine day in September, the woman now older but still no wiser, weighing 99 kilos, stepped through a door into another world. It was not a world of white rabbits and painted roses but one filled with women who all shared similar stories. Here she found fairy godmothers who even without magic wands were able to encourage her to help herself change and transform.

It was here she learned to listen to the negative voices in her head and set about to change them. She began to use wondrous machines that almost magically (with a lot of sweat and hard work) began to change and alter her centimetre by centimetre. She learned to be humble about her struggle for all those previous years and ask for help and support which she received in abundance.

She worked hard and challenged herself every week. Like old Mother Hubbard she cleaned and had little in her cupboard but oh her fridge brimmed with fresh delicacies that she devoured with delight!

In no time at all, or so it seemed to the woman, she began to gain control of her dragon and that big bad wolf. She began to realise she needed no prince to rescue her from the tower she had locked herself in because in reality she had the means to rescue herself - not with will power, nor determination but rather with empowerment and choice.

The woman began to lose weight and in six months she had lost 24.7 kilos, 80 centimetres and 14.4% body fat!

With each kilos lost, her self esteem and sense of achievement grew.

With the help of Healthy Inspirations, she had already rescued herself. Her own quest for a healthier, happier life had begun. "

Healthy Inspirations' consulting dietician Matt O'Neill shows you that to lose more you need to eat more!

It appears to contradict everything we know to be true, but it seems that to lose more weight, the best policy may be to eat more food.

Of course, it all comes down to which food. And the right food is that which contains a lot of water – in other words, good old fruit and vegetables.

A recent study of obese women by Penn State University in America found that significantly more weight was lost by eating more fruit and vegetables than simply by reducing fat.

Their study gave two groups of women instructions about how to alter their diets for long-term weight loss. Each group was told to reduce fat, and given lessons in ways to choose and prepare food so they consumed less fat. They also were advised to walk more, and given a goal of adding 2000 steps a day to their pre-study routine during the 12-month trial.

The difference was that in the second group, advice was also given to increase daily intake of fruit and vegetables. No guidelines or restrictions about total food or caloric intake were provided to either group.

As well as losing more weight, the women on a fruit-and-vegetable diet also reported feeling less hungry than their peers in the other group.

So the old saying must be true – 'an apple a day

Pink Ribbon Day – 22 October

Many of our members have been touched by breast cancer in some way and know only too well the devastating affects it can have on those around them. Just by changing your lifestyle, exercising regularly and becoming a healthy weight, you are already well on your way to combating breast cancer.

You can also help by supporting Pink Ribbon Day, the annual event run by the Cancer Council of Australia to help fight breast cancer. Purchase a ribbon or pin, or make a donation which will help:

- Fund breast cancer research.
- Help those affected by breast cancer right now, by offering support services to help them and their family through their cancer diagnosis and treatment.
- Educate women to be 'breast aware'.
